A few last thoughts
from your Campbell
Family...

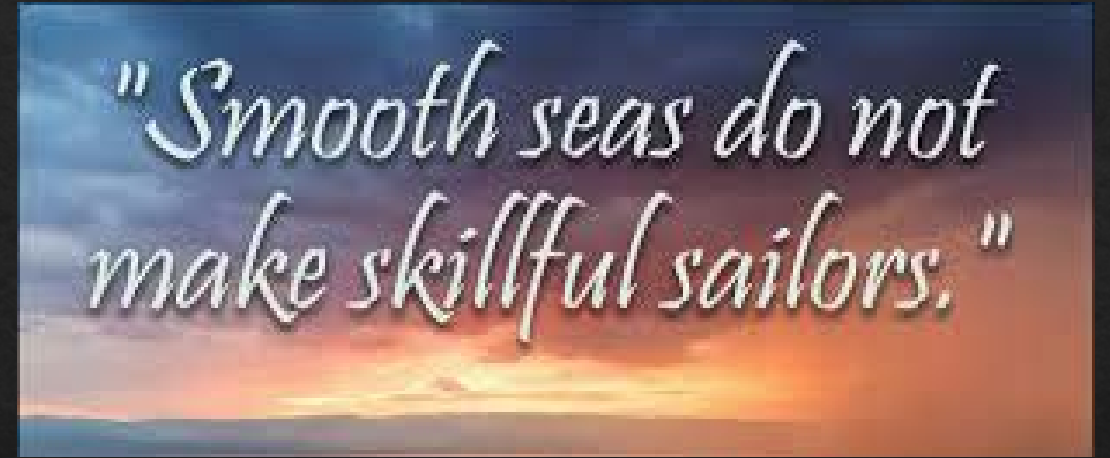

Congratulations!
Today is your day.
You're off to the clinics!
You're off and away!

Guess Who?
Stay Safe Out
There!

- Reflect often, and remember why you decided to become a PT in the first place
- Everyone is a teacher, even if they teach you who you don't want to be
- Patients are like snakes, they're way more scared of you than you are of them
- Empower your patients and their families because they are part of the healthcare team
- You are only a few hours in your patient's week: make them count, make them fun, and figure out how to help them in the rest of the hours (hint: community resources!)
- When you suffer, you gain compassion and understanding for your patients and all people. Let it make you better.
- Good care requires a healthy caregiver (that includes PTs!)
- Big goals are achieved by doing a little bit every day
- You can make nearly anything out of a cardboard box 😊
- Have fun, learn a lot, work hard, and make us look good (I know you will!)

Good luck!

Remember...
What happens in here...
is most important!

Your head is FULL, so go let it out!

Class of 2021

- Become an expert at listening and you will continue to learn!
 - Listen to the patient
 - Listen to the family
 - Listen to your CI
 - Listen to other providers
 - Listen to yourself

Best wishes from my family to yours as you enter this next phase of learning!

Be strong and brave for the Lord your God will be with you wherever you go. Joshua 1:9

Things to Remember:

1. If you are still anxious working with babies. When in doubt...protect their heads ;)
2. Make it a game! Make it fun! (This includes those who are young and young at heart)
3. Remember to incorporate things that are meaningful and valued by patients and their loved ones.
4. You've got this!

*Sending you all happy
thoughts ~ The Smiths*
