

INDEPENDENT STUDY

Campbell Law students may obtain credit for work completed for independent study under the supervision of a member of the Campbell Law faculty. In order to be eligible for independent study, a student must have a faculty sponsor who, together with the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, must approve the student's proposal prior to the beginning of the independent study (and no later than the last day of the add-drop period for the relevant semester).

Students may receive a maximum of three credit hours of independent study over the course of their study at Campbell Law School. Students and faculty sponsors shall address in the proposal whether any credit hours will be reflected on the transcript with either a numerical grade or the "pass/fail" designation. A student may receive a numerical grade for no more than two credits of independent study, unless the third credit is for an independent study that qualifies as the student's initial rigorous writing experience.

Each person signing this agreement should keep a copy. The student is directed to take an executed counterpart to the Registrar as evidence for authorization to be registered for the appropriate number of credits of "independent study" (a separate course on the transcript). The student is reminded that "independent study" credits count against the 17-credits cap.
